A few days later, on 31 March, after their return to London they recorded Funny, Funny in making one of what was to be numerous appearances on the BBC TV show "Top of the Pops." A decade later Brian simply said, "Top of the Pops" was the making of The Sweet.' Also on the show was Jimmy Ruffin, Yes and the dance troupe Pan's People. Nicky Chinn pointed out, 'One day you go to bed and no-one's ever heard of you and the next day, it's Tuesday, and you've appeared in the charts for the first time, you do "Top of the Pops" and then life is different. In every way.'
